AT THE WATTERSON LECTURE.

A Point That is Misunderstood by Many in Regard to the Use
of Season Tickets.

If the weather is at all favorable there will be a magnificent audience at the First Methodist church next Wednesday evening at the lecture of Henry Watterson. Mr. Watterson is one of the ablest men and greatest editors of the country. Since the death of Charles A. Dana Sunday, and with the exception of Joseph Medill of Chicago, he is the greatest editor living in this country or in the world.

The lecture committee is arranging the church so as to comfortably seat 1,000 people. Chairman Brown says that the people will not be crowded beyond the limit of comfort. A special train will be run to Buchanan after the lecture on the new road provided there are passengers enough to warrant the expense of the extra trip, on which point there is little if any doubt.

Everybody will want to see the expression and the gestures of the best known of all Kentuckians. In order to accomplish this the committee requests that the ladies in the audience remove their hats.

The season tickets are sold for $1 and contain coupons for five entertainments. Now and then a purchaser asks the privilege to use two or three of the coupons of one ticket for so many admissions to the Watterson lecture. Of course no such use of the tickets will be allowed. The Watterson lecture costs double the price paid for some of the other entertainments. The situation may be illustrated by a restaurant keeper who sells a ticket good for three meals and two lunches. The purchaser takes five of his friends to the restaurant next day and they all have dinner and he tries to pass in for payment of the five dinners the three meal and two lunch tickets. The Watterson lecture is one of the square meals of the course, it is worth twice 50 cents, and can't be paid for with a 25 cent lunch coupon.

Tickets for the course may be purchased of C. J. Brown, J. H. Herr, Lowe & Witherspoon or any member of the committee. Children under 9 will be admitted free, between 9 and 14 half price.

DENIES PETITION.

JUDGE COOLIDGE FILES OPINION
IN RECEIVERSHIP CASE.

Says a Hearing Must be Had Before Receiver for Tunnel Company
May be Appointed.

Judge Coolidge has denied H. D. Deam's petition for the appointment of a receiver for the Benton Harbor Electric Railway & Transit company. He filed his opinion with the county clerk this morning. He holds that only in exceptional cases is a court justified in appointing a receiver without a full hearing on the merits. The opinion in detail appears below:

"The practice of appointing receivers on preliminary application and before a full hearing on the merits is in my opinion dangerous and arbitrary in its nature and should not be indulged in by the courts except in cases of extreme exigency or where admitted facts clearly justify a resort to this extraordinary remedy. This application does not in my opinion come within the range of exceptional cases referred to. If urged by the complainant the case can be heard on its merits in November and the defendants should be prepared to meet the issues as soon as the case can be reached on the calendar. The petition for the appointment of a receiver is denied."

The opinion is regarded by the defendant's attorneys as equivalent to the vacation of the injunction against Messrs. Hamilton, Davies and Hollis, restraining them from proceeding with the business of the company.

Hearings are being held at Benton Harbor and at St. Joseph, Mich.

AMONG THE CRIMINALS.

Pitiful Scene at the St. Joseph Police
Station.

Saturday morning a sad-faced woman plainly attired, carrying an infant in her arms, entered Chief Stuckey's office at the police station in St. Joseph and told a story of wretchedness that fairly melted the heart of the big chief. She said her husband, William Dunlap, refused to support her, that she had no home, no food and scanty clothing, and her hollow cheeks, her enfeebled body and weary expression bore testimony to her condition. The chief got a warrant and went after the recreant husband. He was arrested under the disorderly act and this morning was arraigned before Justice St. Clair. He maintained that he didn't know his wife was suffering; that her whereabouts had been unknown to him. He expressed a purpose to care for her and the case was dismissed. Dunlap lives in this city.

Ralph Mathers pleaded guilty to the larceny of a kit of plasterer's tools before Justice St. Clair this morning and was sentenced to 45 days in the county jail. The tools were owned by Cyrus Edwards, and were stolen from a Benton Harbor saloon Saturday.

The examination of George Vosburg on complaint of obtaining goods under false pretenses, was continued before Justice Graves today until next Friday at 9 o'clock.

What is it wanting in the spring?
O April, lover to us all!
What is so poignant in thy thrall
When children's merry voices ring?
What haunts us in the cooling dove
More subtle than the speech of love,
What nameless lack or loss of spring?

Let youth go daily with the spring.
Call her the dear, the fair, the young.
And all her graces over sung
Let him, once more rehearsing, sing.
They know who keep a broken trust
Till something from the spring he missed
We have not truly known the spring.

VENGEFUL IN DEATH.

On a certain day I received a letter from a private soldier named Gratmar, attached to the garrison of San Francisco. I had known him but slightly, the acquaintance having come about through his interest in some stories which I had published, and which he had a way of calling "psychological studies." He was a dreamy, romantic, fine grained lad, proud as a tiger lily and sensitive as a bluebell. What mad caprice led him to join the army I never knew, but I did know that there he was wretchedly out of place, and I foresaw that his rude and repellent environment would make of him in time a deserter or a suicide or a murderer. The letter at first seemed a wild outpouring of despair, for it informed me that before it should reach me its author would be dead by his own hand. But when I had read further I understood its spirit and realized how coolly formed a scheme it disclosed and how terrible its purpose was intended to be. The worst of the contents was the information that a certain officer (whom he named) had driven him to the deed, and that he was committing suicide for the sole purpose of gaining thereby the power to revenge himself upon his enemy. I learned afterward that the officer had received a similar letter.

This was so puzzling that I sat down to reflect upon the young man's peculiarities. He had always seemed somewhat uncanny and had I proved more sympathetic he doubtless would have gone further and told me of certain problems which he professed to have solved concerning the life beyond this.
One thing that he had said came back vividly, "If I could only overcome that purely gross and animal love of life that makes us all shun death, I would kill myself, for I know how far more powerful I could be in spirit than in flesh."

The manner of the suicide was startling, and that was what might have been expected from this odd character.
Evidently scorning the flummery of funerals, he had gone into a little canyon near the military reservation and blown himself into a million fragments with dynamite, so that all of him that was found was some minute particles of flesh and bone.

I kept the letter a secret, for I desired to observe the officer without rousing his suspicion of my purpose. It would be an admirable test of a dead man's power and deliberate intention to haunt the living, for so I interpreted the letter. The officer thus to be punished was an oldish man, short, apoc-plectic, overbearing and irascible. Generally he was kind to most of the men in a way, but he was gross and mean, and that explained sufficiently his harsh treatment of young Gratmar, whom he could not understand, and his efforts to break that flighty young man's spirit.

Not very long after the suicide certain modifications in the officer's conduct became apparent to my watchful oversight. His choleric, though none the less sporadic, developed a quality which had some of the characteristics of senility, and yet he was still in his prime and passed for a sound man. He was a bachelor and had lived always alone,
but presently he began to shirk solitude at night and court it in daylight. His brother officers chaffed him, and thereupon he would laugh in rather a forced and silly fashion quite different from the ordinary way with him, and would sometimes, on these occasions, blush so violently that his face would become almost purple. His soldierly alertness and sternness relaxed surprisingly at times and at others were exaggerated into unnecessary acerbity, his conduct in this regard suggesting that of a drunken man who knows that he is drunk and who now and then makes a brave effort to appear sober. All these things and more, indicating some mental strain or some dreadful apprehension,
or perhaps something worse than either,
were observed partly by me and partly
by an intelligent officer whose watch upon the man had been secured by me.

To be more particular, the afflicted man was observed often to start suddenly and in alarm, look quickly round and make some unintelligent monosyllabic answer, seemingly to an inaudible question that no visible person had asked.
He acquired the reputation, too, of having taken lately to nightmares, for in the middle of the night he would shriek
in the most dreadful fashion, alarming his roommates prodigiously. After these attacks he would sit up in bed, his ruddy face devoid of color, his eyes glassy and shining, his breathing broken with gasps and his body wet with a cold perspiration.

Knowledge of these developments and transformations spread throughout the garrison, but the few (mostly women) who dared to express sympathy or suggest a tonic encountered so violent rebuffs that they blessed heaven for escaping alive from his word volleys. Even the garrison surgeon, who had a kindly manner, and the commanding general,

he did not wish to visit him, and I was determinedly so to arrange my weekly spirit medium—extraordinary because he always had scoffed at the idea of spirit communications. I saw him as he was leaving the medium's rooms. His face was purple, his eyes were bulging and terrified, and he tottered in his walk. A policeman, seeing his distress, advanced to assist him, whereupon the soldier hoarsely begged:

"Call a hack."

Into it he fell and asked to be driven to his quarters. I hastily ascended to the medium's rooms and found her lying unconscious on the floor. Soon, with my aid, she recalled her wits, but her conscious state was even more alarming than the other. At first she regarded me with terror and cried:

"It is horrible for you to hound him so!"

I assured her that I was hounding no one.

"Oh, I thought you were the spir—I mean—I—oh, but it was standing exactly where you are!" she exclaimed.

"I suppose so," I agreed, "but you can see that I am not the young man's spirit. However, I am familiar with this whole case, madam, and if I can be of any service in the matter I should be glad if you will inform me. I am aware that our friend is persecuted by a spirit, which visits him frequently, and I am positive that through you it has informed him that the end is not far away and that our elderly friend's death will assume some terrible form.
Is there anything that I can do to avert the tragedy?"

The woman stared at me in a horrified silence. "How do you know these things?" she gasped.

"That is immaterial. When will the tragedy occur? Can I prevent it?"

"Yes, yes!" she exclaimed. "It will happen this very night, but no earthly power can prevent it."

She came close to me and looked at me with an expression of the most acute terror.

"Merciful God! What will become of me? He is to be murdered, you understand—murdered in cold blood by a spirit—and he knows it, and I know it!
If he is spared long enough, he will tell them at the garrison, and they will all think that I had something to do with it. Oh, this is terrible, terrible, and yet I dare not say a word in advance—nobody there would believe in what the spirits say, and they will think that I had a hand in the murder!"

"Be assured that he will say nothing about it," I said, "and if you keep your tongue from wagging you need fear nothing."

With this and a few other hurried words of comfort I soothed her and hastened away.

For I had interesting work on hand.
It is not often that one may be in such a murder as that. I ran to a livery stable, secured a swift horse, mounted him and spurred furiously for the reservation. The hack, with its generous start, had gone far on its way, but my horse was nimble, and his legs felt the pricking of my cagerness. A few miles of this furious pursuit brought me within sight of the hack just as it was crossing a dark ravine near the reservation. As I came nearer I imagined that the hack swayed somewhat and that a fleeing shadow escaped from it into the tree banked farther wall of the ravine. I certainly was not in error with regard to the swaying, for it had roused the dull notice of the driver. I saw him turn, with an air of alarm in his action,
and then pull up with a heavy swing upon the reins. At this moment I dashed up and halted.

"Anything the matter?" I asked.

"I don't know," he answered, getting down. "I felt the carriage sway, and I see that the door's wide open. Guess my load thought he'd sobered up enough to get out and walk without troubling me or his pocketbook."

Meanwhile I, too, had alighted. Then I struck a match, and by its light we discovered through the open door the "load" huddled confusedly on the floor of the hack, face upward and looking altogether vulgar, misshapen and miserably unlike a soldier. It neither moved nor spoke when we called. We hastily clambered within and lifted him upon the seat, but his head rolled about with an awful looseness and freedom, and another match disclosed a ghastly dead face and wide open eyes that stared hor-ribly at nothing.

"You had better drive the body to headquarters," I said.

Instead of following I cantered back to town, housed my horse and went straightway to bed, and this will prove to be the first information that I was the "mysterious man on a horse" whom the coroner could never find.

About a year afterward I received the following letter—which is observed to be in fair English—from Stockholm:

DEAR SIR—For some years I have been reading your remarkable psychological studies with great interest, and I take the liberty to suggest a theme for your able pen. I have just found in a library here a newspaper dated about a year ago, in which is an account of the mysterious death of a military officer in a hack.

Then followed the particulars as I have already detailed them, and the very theme of post-mortem revenge which I have adopted in this setting out of facts. More extraordinary still is his suggestion that in the dynamite explosion a dog or a quarter of beef might as well have been employed as a suicide minded man; that, in short, the man might not have killed himself at all,
but might have employed a presumption of such an occurrence to render more effective a physical persecution ending in murder by the living man who posed as a spirit. The letter even suggested an arrangement with a spirit medium.

The only remaining disclosure that I received was that the man who had been murdered was a private soldier named Gratmar.

"After having tumors removed I was was relieved of these troubles." E. V.

SHORT OF HER DUTY

The Church is Not Fulfilling Its Mission Declares Rev. Mr. Simons.

CHURCH SHOULD BE A HARBOR

A Vesper Service Introduced at the First Congregational Sunday Evening.

"Is the church fulfilling its mission?" was the theme from which Rev. George B. Simons preached a strong and pointed sermon at the First Baptist church Sunday morning.

The theme was suggested to the pastor by reading an interview with Chief Kipley printed in a Chicago paper. The chief of police declared that the church was not exercising any influence over the criminal classes but that it was a deterrent that kept people from becoming criminals. Ever since Mr. Simons has preached here he has urged upon his church that it was easier to prevent than to cure sin. This he holds to be strikingly true in regard to intemperance. It is easier to keep the young from the drunkard's way than to reform the drunkard.

The church, he said, was not fulfilling its mission. It never would as long as any branch held the proud idea that it was "the whole thing." It never would as long as it failed to rescue men and women out of crime and sin. It never would as long as the church member transacted his business as did the worldly business man.

Perhaps Watterson might tell it, but he told an incident in the life of Lincoln. An emaciated lad called on the president. He had been a drummer boy and was taken sick in the army. He had just been released from the hospital and had nowhere to go. His mother was dead, his father had fallen in battle. The boy was too weak to work. Tears started down the cheek of the kind president and he wrote a note ordering the quartermaster of the army to care for him. "That's what the church ought to do and be—a refuge for the homeless and sin-tried, a lighthouse to the wanderer, and not a place for the gathering of proud hypocrites."

Next Sunday Mr. Simons will show the relation of the church to the criminals, in his Prison Sunday sermon.

A vesper service was held at the First Congregational church Sunday evening. It consisted of responsive readings and special music by the choir. It is proposed to hold a similar service every month and it is safe to predict that the vesper song will become popular with the congregation.

Miss Eleanor Woodruff contributed a charming feature to the morning service at the Episcopal church Sunday. She sang a solo and her beautiful soprano voice was never more appreciated. She touched the tenderest emotions of her auditors and called forth sympathies long latent and unexercised. The story of the song was full of pathos and this element was so forcibly brought out that many eyes became moist with weeping.

SAYS HE'LL KILL HIMSELF.

Major Evans Ashamed of Going Back to Jail.

CASSOPOLIS, Oct. 18.—Major Evans, now in the Cass county jail awaiting trial for attempting to shoot a messenger on a Michigan Central train at Glenwood, has made two unsuccessful attempts at suicide. He fears at his trial, which commences Monday, he may receive a long sentence.

Evans declares he is innocent. He says, while serving his last term in Jackson prison, he took active part in the religious services and urged his fellow convicts after their release to live sober, honest, industrious lives. For this reason he declares he can never go back to prison again and face them.

If the jury convicts him he swears he will never leave the court room alive, having deadly poison concealed in his pockets.

17 YEARS AGO.

The Steamer Alpena Foundered in Lake Michigan.

Seventeen years ago yesterday the steamer Alpena was shipwrecked and upwards of 130 person perished. The steamer left Grand Haven Friday night October 16, 1880, and sank in a terrible gale that sprung up during the night and continued throughout Saturday.

The frightful calamity is distinctly remembered by many Benton Harbor citizens, and particularly vivid are the circumstances to Don C. Morrison, Frank H. Platt, Dr. McLin and Frank Napier, who left this place in a tug as soon as the steamer was reported lost and went to Grand Haven where they patrolled the beach in search of bodies. They discovered the first body from the boat cast up by Lake Michigan. Mr. Morrison had a relative among the lost and Captain Napier, the master of the Alpena, was the father of Frank Napier.

PUT UP BRAVE FIGHT

Did Supervisor Hemingway Before the Board of Supervisors.

BUT OPPOSITION WAS STRONG

And He Did Not Succeed in Having Benton Harbor's Assessment Reduced.

Supervisor Hemingway, of this city, made a brave fight before the board of supervisors to have $40,000 lopped off the assessment of Benton Harbor. He was defeated, but his valor and gallantry in the struggle will be remembered. He urged as a reason for the reduction that the city had suffered through the blight of the season's fruit crop; that business and professional men, land owners and laborers, all alike felt the depression produced by the failure in the great industry to which Benton Harbor looked for a maintenance, and therefore were not so able to meet taxation as in prosperous years.

His oratory was lost to the supervisors and his proposition was defeated. Mr. Hemingway made his speech while the board was considering the adoption of the report of the committee on equalization. Others of the supervisors, Lincoln's and Royalton's representatives, each argued for a reduction, but they were no more successful than Mr. Hemingway.

The committee on equalization, Supervisors, Ira R. Stemm, J. S. Caldwell, J. E. Harder, Clayton Smith and John Seel, submitted its report late Saturday afternoon. Five thousand dollars were deducted from the assessment of Bainbridge, $40,000 added to Bertrand, $10,000 deducted from Berrien, $15,000 from Chikaming, $5,000 from Gallen, $10,000 from Hagar, $40,000 added to Lincoln, $17,000 deducted from New Buffalo, $77,000 from Niles, $10,000 added to Pipestone, $25,000 to Royalton, $30,000 to St. Joseph, $10,000 deducted from Sodas, $40,000 from Three Oaks, $20,000 added to Watervliet.

The total assessment of each township and city as equalized by the board follows: Bainbridge, $476,220; Bertrand, $958,590; Berrien, $903,090; Benton, $935,375; Benton Harbor—first ward, $243,110; second ward, $151,730; third ward, $357,025; fourth ward, $419,500; Buchanan, $1,183,515; Chikaming, $213,835; Gallen, $324,110; Hagar, $241,810; Lake, $449,260; Lincoln, $299,590; New Buffalo, $252,455; Niles city—first ward, $269,376; second ward, $611,147; third ward, $309,633; fourth ward, $279,081; Niles township, $981,430; Oronoko, $934,020; Pipestone, $577,310; Royalton, $352,440; St. Joseph, $295,625; St. Joseph city—first ward, $448,250; second ward, $161,549; third ward, $254,278; fourth ward, $178,345; Sodas, $378,910; Three Oaks, $522,300; Watervliet, $965,990; Weesaw, $480,760; grand total, $15,309,642.

CURED OF SCROFULA.

ALLEGAN, Mich., Sept. 3.—For the benefit of suffering humanity I wish to state that for seven years I was a great sufferer from scrofula and blood trouble, having a very bad limb all of those years. My limb was a raw sore from the knee to the ankle, and it had been impossible to find relief or help. My health was very poor from the condition of my blood. After all of these years of suffering I became discouraged and had about given up being any better.

I was advised to call on Drs. B. S. & Co. when at Allegan. They told me they could help me. I believed they knew their business and commenced treatment at that time. This was in 1893. I began to improve at once and continued to improve until my limb was well and my health was good, and I have remained well and I feel that I cannot thank Drs. B. S. & Co. enough for what they have done for me. After seven years with other skillful doctors and to get no better I feel that I must sing their praises. I am in hopes that all sick and afflicted will see Drs. B. S. & Co. before it is too late. They are all right and gentlemen of honor.

MRS. LIZZIE SCHINTZ.

DIED OF HUNGER.

THOUSANDS DIE IN CUBA OF STARVATION.

Report That Three Men Have Volunteered to Kill Sagasta, the Successor of Weyler.

KEY WEST, Fla., Oct. 18.—Five thousand concentrated people have died of hunger at Las Palacios, a town in Pinar del Rio province, in seven months.

Insurgent Brigadier Castillo has sacked the town of San Jose, in Havana province. The garrison made no resistance, but a strong Spanish force came to aid the town and fierce combat in the outskirts ensued. The insurgents defeated the Spaniards, inflicting heavy losses.

Col. Jose Loreto Cepero, who was captured and kept in Cabanas prison for some time and is now fighting for Cuban liberty, attacked the Burgos battalion near Santa Clara, defeating the Spanish, who lost forty-eight killed and ninety-seven wounded. Col. Sanchez and four other officers were killed. Cepero afterward attacked a Spanish factory at Clenuegros, taking all the merchandise needed.

It is said at Havana that some volunteers have agreed to assassinate Sagasta, and that three men have sailed to Spain for that purpose, the cause being the recall of General Weyler.

A Curious Indian.

Dr. Chancery M. Depew tells how, near the Pawnee Indians had exterminated the Crow, when he was a boy, he journeyed from Peekskill to New York to see the great Pawnee war chief who was being exhibited at Barnum's. "It happened to be the 17th of March," said Mr. Depew, "and as the parade passed the museum, the band playing 'The Wearing of the Green,' the great Pawnee war chief rushed to the window and exclaimed to the medicine man, 'Moked, Moike, I'll see that procession if I lose my job!'"—Exchange.

American newspapers are crowded with reports of the terrible famine in Ireland. It is not to the wheat crop this year has been homicide. The country is big and it accords with reasonable expectation that in one part or another of it killing should be in progress all the time. But this year, and especially this summer, there certainly seems to have been much more than the usual amount of it, and it will be interesting, when the returns are all in and some one has tabulated them, to learn whether this impression is well founded or not. For ten years past the Chicago Tribune has kept the run of murders and homicides so far as it could and has made an annual report of them. According to a table based on these reports, there were 1,440 homicides in the country in 1886, and 7,000 in 1895. The tables show a great but irregular annual increase. The Tribune's estimate of the murder of lynchings is interesting. It gives 138 in 1886, 236 in 1892 and 160 in 1895. It shows 2.30 executions to every 100 homicides.

The statistics of murders in Europe, as given in 'The World Almanac,' show that Italians kill most readily, the average annual number of murders in Italy being 9,470, or 99.4 to every 10,000 deaths. Spain follows with a ratio of 89.8. Austria's ratio is 8.8; France's, 8.0, and England's, 7.1. These European figures, however, apply to murders alone, and do not include, like the tables for the United States, all sorts of manslaughters, justifiable or otherwise.—Harper's Weekly

MICHIGAN DIAMOND MINE.

Story Printed in Chicago Papers Today.

A dispatch from Niles in the morning papers says: Residents of Charles-town township, near Galesburg, are greatly excited over the finding of a six-karat diamond in Portage Creek. George Schram, a farmer, was walking on the bank when he saw something glittering in the bed of the creek. The mass was broken and there was revealed a brilliant object which proved to be a diamond. The outer case of the diamond has been assayed and found to contain gold. Mr. Schram has refused five offers for his farm.

HER SOUL UNBURDENED.

A Young Bride's Confession in the Waning of the Honeymoon.

Charley Wheeler and Lucille Sprockett had been married nearly three weeks, and they had just returned from their wedding trip. They were supremely happy in each other's love, and the honeymoon so far had been to them as one long, blissful dream. Within the next day or two, however, the bride grew slightly depressed in spirits, and an uneasy feeling seemed to take possession of her. The young husband noticed the change, but attributed it to fatigue from the recent travels. But his bride grew more nervous and took on such a troubled expression that he said to her:

"You have something on your mind, darling, that is troubling you. Tell me what it is."

At first she tried to persuade him that he was mistaken, that nothing worried her.

"You are wrong, Charley, dear," she would say. "Really, I am not worrying over anything. I am just as happy as I can be."

The day following, however, the young wife wore such a troubled look that her husband said to her:

"Lucille, you must tell me what is troubling you. I will not be put off any longer. As your husband I have a right to know."

Seeing that farther concealment was impossible, she broke down and sobbed bitterly:

"Oh, Charley, I am so unhappy!" she wailed. "I have—deceived—you."

A sickening sensation swept over the young husband. Surely there must be some mistake. She, whom he had looked upon as the personification of innocent womanhood—deceive him! It must not be. It would destroy his happiness and blight his life. And then, when he caught a sudden vision of the horrible possibilities of the situation, he became sick at heart and almost fell to the floor. Then, with a great effort, he controlled his feelings.

"Tell me," he said. "I am prepared for the worst."

"Oh, Charley, I am so sorry!"

"You should have thought of this before."

"I know, I know. I see my mistake, now it's too late," she cried. "Oh, why didn't I tell you before we were married?"

"Tell me now, and be quick about it. I cannot bear this suspense."

"Tell me first that you will forgive me," she said in pleading tones. "I will devote my whole life in atonement for this one mistake."

"I cannot promise until I know what it is," he said.

Then she came over and knelt at his feet.

"Oh, Charley, you know the wheel I got just a few weeks before we were married!"

"Yes; but what has that?"

"Why, I bought it—on the installment plan—$4 a month—and have only paid—one installment. And I just know the collector will be—here 'tomorrow. Oh, Charley," she sobbed, "can you ever forgive me?"—Ohio State Journal

Horrible Story of the Murder of An Infant by a Farmer Near Charlotte.

THE NEW STATE TAX LAW.

Auditor General Dix Calls Attention to Some Mistaken Ideas That are Afloat.

CHARLOTTE, Oct. 18.—(Special)The mysterious grave robbery in Carmel has developed into a charge of child murder and the charge of grave robbery against John Bigley and Frank Miller will be changed to murder by killing with a pitchfork and burning the body of a young babe. Tuesday morning Miller's unmarried daughter gave birth to a child which was reported to the neighbors as being dead, and the same day it was buried in a fence corner on the farm without either coffin or clothing.

There was such an air of mystery connected with the whole affair that an investigation was ordered, resulting in Bigley and Miller being locked up. Saturday afternoon Miller, who is the husband of Bigley's other daughter, weakened under the pressure of Sheriff Hall, and explained the whole thing. He said that he arrived home and went to the stable to put out his horse, not knowing anything about the events of the day. While thus engaged Bigley arrived at the stable and brought the child out from under some straw, and that it was alive; that Bigley handed him a pitchfork and compelled him to kill the child, which he did by running the tines of the fork into its body; that while doing this Bigley stood over him with a knife and threatened to kill him if he refused to do it. After the child was dead, he says, old Bigley carried the body to the house and tossed it into the stove. The sheriff has found considerable corroborative evidence to Miller's story.

THE NEW TAX LAW.

Property Sold in 1894 Must be Redeemed Before December 4.

LANSING, Oct. 18.—There is a mistaken idea afloat regarding the effect of the new tax law which changes the time for the redemption of state taxes from December to May. The impression is abroad that the delinquent taxes of 1894 need not be redeemed until next May. Auditor-General Dix announces that redemption from the sale made from the tax record at the annual tax sale in December, 1894, for taxes of 1894 or prior years must be made on or before December 4, 1897, whether the sale was made to an individual or the redemption bid to the state. Redemption money cannot be received either by the county treasurers or by the auditor's department, at any later date. On and after December 6, all lands bid to the state at the tax sale in December 1894, and not redeemed before that date becomes state tax land, and subject to sale as such, and all lands sold to individuals at said sale will be deeded on surrender thereafter of the certificate of sale.

Ira Lent and Frank Kelly, the two members of Company E, First Regiment, who were injured during the encampment of 1895, will receive an allowance of $1,500 and $2,000 respectively from the state board of auditors at its next meeting.

Ed Hayes, alias Charles Brown, attempted to escape from Deputy Sheriff Clark at Kalamazoo Saturday while returning to jail from court, and after a hot chase was shot by Clark. He dropped but was soon up and ran, but was caught. By means of X-rays the ball was located and was removed. He is under guard at Queen City hospital. He is charged with burglary.

THE WONDERS OF A WATCH.

Few Persons Know How Great Its Marvelous Powers Are.

A Boston jeweler who has a talent for advertising as well as a genius for mechanics has been reminding his patrons lately that a watch is the smallest, most delicate machine that was ever constructed of the same number of parts. About 175 different pieces of material enter into its construction and upward of 2,400 separate operations are comprised in its manufacture.

Some of the facts connected with its performance are simply incredible, when considered in total. A blacksmith strikes several thousand blows on his anvil in a day and is right glad when Sunday comes around, but the roller jewel of a watch makes every day and 72 after day 432,000 impacts against a fork, or 157,680,000 blows in a year without stop or rest, or 3,153,600,000 in the short space of 20 years.

These figures are beyond the grasp of our feeble intellects, but the marvel does not stop here. It has been estimated that the power that moves the watch is equivalent to only four times the force used in a flea's jump; consequently it might be called a four flea power. One horsepower would suffice to run 175,000,000 watches.

Now the balance wheel of a watch is moved by this four flea power one and twenty three one-hundredths inches with each vibration—3,558 1/2 miles continuously in one year.

If you would preserve the timekeeping qualities of your watch, you should have it in a competent watchmaker's care.

Embroidered Jacket - Illustration - Buttons - Trimming For Suit Jacket.

Cloth of various colors will be very much worn this winter. Effective contrasts will be obtained by means of velvet and embroidered satin, which will be utilized as trimming. Gray and other subdued tints, while enjoying a fair share of attention, will yet not militate against the employment of colors by means of which elegant and artistic results are to be obtained. Cloth in green, violet, mauve, bluish gray, changeable pink and gray or white, trimmed with darker velvet, valuable ornamental buttons and applications of embroidery or old point enriched with gold or silver, composes exquisite toilettes of great elaboration and expense.

Buttons are still much used for decoration, but are not as immense as heretofore, the largest being seldom more than 1 1/2 inches in diameter. From this size they run down to very small ones and include all styles of material and workmanship. Some are entirely composed of metal filigree, others are studded with jewels, still others are made of cut steel. There are enameled and painted buttons, buttons of plain or frosted gold or silver, buttons of pearl, horn and composition, and these are all employed for ornament as well as for use.

With the diminishment of sleeves, jackets have resumed all their former favor, and although capes are still fashionable they do not prevail as they formerly did, when enormously bouffant sleeves made them a necessity. Jackets are often very much decorated, now that flat ornamentation is again used, and many models are decidedly elaborate.

The picture given today shows a jacket of mauve gray cloth, fitting closely at the back, but rather loose in front. It is trimmed with black braid, fastened by tiny steel buttons. Lines of braid follow the seams. The back, the lower edge and the revers are embroidered with black and gold. The collar is of black velvet.

Evidence That There Is Room for Everybody in the Yukon Country.

ST. MICHAEL, Alaska, Oct. 4. (via San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 18).—A story has come down the river that Tanana will become the rival of Klondike. Reports say that rich stakes have been made on this tributary of the Yukon, and the best part of it is that Tanana river is in American territory. The Tanana river is several hundred miles long and of the same character as the Klondike. It empties into the Yukon from the east at Weare, opposite the town of Tanana, about thirty miles below Rampart City. It is fed by streams from the Tanana hills on the north and Mount McKinley on the south. The Tanana river is about 700 miles from Dawson City on a straight line and 1,000 miles by the Yukon river route.

THE COURT'S OBJECTIONS.

Flaws Found by Judge Coolidge in the Hickory Creek Drain Proceedings.

In the opinion handed down by Judge Coolidge in the Hickory Creek drain matter, in which he decides the proceedings void, he says the main question to consider is whether the original application is sufficient to warrant the drain commissioner in proceeding to deepen, straighten and widen Hickory Creek. The application, the court says, did not ask for the establishment of Hickory Creek as a drain, and therefore, it is held, the drain commissioner's authority in diverting the natural course of the creek by turning its waters into an artificial channel is questioned. "Wherever it is proposed, therefore," the court says, "to have the commissioner make any changes in an established drain or a natural water course by widening, deepening, straightening or extending, I think that application must set forth specifically, what portion, or all of these objects is desired."

PINGREE POTATOES.

What the Governor Brought Home from Venezuela.

LANSING, Oct. 18.—Governor Pingree has sent to the college seven potatoes, an ear of corn and a pear which he brought from Venezuela. The potatoes are of medium size, of a purple color, and resemble the Blue Victor. The Venezuelan name of the variety is not known, but the United States name will be "Governor Pingree." The corn is eight-rowed flint, ear eleven inches long and a good specimen of that variety. The pear is not like any variety of our pears, but looks very much like a Japanese persimmon. It will be preserved as a curiosity. The corn and potatoes will be planted next spring and tested for this climate. Governor Pingree says the potatoes are of excellent quality.

ENGLISH LAWYERS.

The Small Fees That Are Received by the London Barristers.

A barrister's fees are small, and they are always paid in advance, and the sum is recorded under the title of the brief. A friend who has a large practice showed me his feebook yesterday. The largest item was 38 guineas, which is less than $200. The average was about $50. Fees are regulated by the benchers of the inn according to the service performed, and no contingent fees are allowed. A barrister may accept a case for nothing or return the fee in cases of charity, but he cannot without violating his oath, directly or indirectly, accept any greater compensation for a legal service than is allowed in the regular schedule fixed by the benchers of his inn. If he does so, he is debarred from practice.

It is a common custom in America for a lawyer to undertake a suit for the recovery of damages or a claim of any kind with a contract that he shall receive a certain percentage of the amount of money recovered. In England such an act would be considered disreputable, and any barrister found guilty would be expelled from his inn. The fees are regulated by the amount of time and labor required, and not by the amount of money involved. A barrister may receive a fee of $250 in a case involving only $500, and he may receive a fee of $25 in a case involving $1,000,000.

All legal business originates with solicitors. They bring to the barrister's office a case all prepared after certain forms and written in manuscript. The British courts do not permit typewriting. The solicitor requests the barrister to undertake the case, and the fee is marked plainly upon the brief. If the barrister does not care to undertake the labor for the amount of money allowed or for any other reason, he advises the solicitor to go elsewhere. If he accepts the responsibility, the solicitor leaves the amount of the fee in coin with the brief, so that the barrister has his pay in advance. This is the almost invariable custom. The only exceptions are in cases of close friendship between the solicitors and barristers and where there is a large amount of litigation in which both are involved. Then it is customary for the barrister to make up his bill at the end of the month or the end of the quarter, but the fee in each case must nevertheless be written upon the brief and recorded in the books of the court.

It is customary, also, for the solicitor to leave a fee for the barrister's clerk at the same time, which must be a certain percentage of that paid to the barrister. When you dine at a hotel or a restaurant in England, it is customary to tip the waiter an amount equal to 5 per cent of your bill for the same reason. The waiter receives no compensation from his employer, nor does the barrister's clerk. His pay comes entirely from the clients, and if his principal has no clients he gets no pay. On the other hand, if his principal has a very large and profitable practice his fees are enormous. They say that the clerk of Sir Charles Russell lives in a handsome villa down in the suburbs, is driven to and from his office in a brougham and hires a box at the opera for the season. —Chicago Record.

APPEAL TO LADIES.

Lecture Committee Requests All
Ladies to Remove Their Hats
Wednesday Evening.

AT THE WATTERSON LECTURE.

A Point That is Misunderstood by
Many in Regard to the Use
of Season Tickets.

If the weather is at all favorable there will be a magnificent audience at the First Methodist church next Wednesday evening at the lecture of Henry Watterson. Mr. Watterson is one of the ablest men and greatest editors of the country. Since the death of Charles A. Dana Sunday, and with the exception of Joseph Medill of Chicago, he is the greatest editor living in this country or in the world.

The lecture committee is arranging the church so as to comfortably seat 1,000 people. Chairman Brown says that the people will not be crowded beyond the limit of comfort. A special train will be run to Buchanan after the lecture on the new road provided there are passengers enough to warrant the expense of the extra trip, on which point there is little if any doubt.

Everybody will want to see the expression and the gestures of the best known of all Kentuckians. In order to accomplish this the committee requests that the ladies in the audience remove their hats.

The season tickets are sold for $1 and contain coupons for five entertainments. Now and then a purchaser asks the privilege to use two or three of the coupons of one ticket for so many admissions to the Watterson lecture. Of course no such use of the tickets will be allowed. The Watterson lecture costs double the price paid for some of the other entertainments. The situation may be illustrated by a restaurant keeper who sells a ticket good for three meals and two lunches. The purchaser takes five of his friends to the restaurant next day and they all have dinner and he tries to pass in for payment of the five dinners the three meal and two lunch tickets. The Watterson lecture is one of the square meals of the course, it is worth twice 50 cents, and can't be paid for with a 25 cent lunch coupon.

Tickets for the course may be purchased of C. J. Brown, J. H. Herr, Lowe & Witherspoon or any member of the committee. Children under 9 will be admitted free, between 9 and 14 half price.

DENIES PETITION.

JUDGE COOLIDGE FILES OPINION
IN RECEIVERSHIP CASE.

Says a Hearing Must be Had Before Receiver for Tunnel Company
May be Appointed.

Judge Coolidge has denied H. D. Deam's petition for the appointment of a receiver for the Benton Harbor Electric Railway & Transit company. He filed his opinion with the county clerk this morning. He holds that only in exceptional cases is a court justified in appointing a receiver without a full hearing on the merits. The opinion in detail appears below:

"The practice of appointing receivers on preliminary application and before a full hearing on the merits is in my opinion dangerous and arbitrary in its nature and should not be indulged in by the courts except in cases of extreme exigency or where admitted facts clearly justify a resort to this extraordinary remedy. This application does not in my opinion come within the range of exceptional cases referred to. If urged by the complainant the case can be heard on its merits in November and the defendants should be prepared to meet the issues as soon as the case can be reached on the calendar. The petition for the appointment of a receiver is denied."

The opinion is regarded by the defendant's attorneys as equivalent to the vacation of the injunction against Messrs. Hamilton, Davies and Hollis, resulting from non-compliance with the court's order.

AMONG THE CRIMINALS.

Pitiful Scene at the St. Joseph Police
Station.

Saturday morning a sad-faced woman plainly attired, carrying an infant in her arms, entered Chief Stuckey's office at the police station in St. Joseph and told a story of wretchedness that fairly melted the heart of the big chief. She said her husband, William Dunlap, refused to support her, that she had no home, no food and scanty clothing, and her hollow cheeks, her enfeebled body and weary expression bore testimony to her condition. The chief got a warrant and went after the recalcitrant husband. He was arrested under the disorderly act and this morning was arraigned before Justice St. Clair. He maintained that he didn't know his wife was suffering; that her whereabouts had been unknown to him. He expressed a purpose to care for her and the case was dismissed. Dunlap lives in this city.

Ralph Mathers pleaded guilty to the larceny of a kit of plasterer's tools before Justice St. Clair this morning and was sentenced to 45 days in the county jail. The tools were owned by Cyrus Edwards, and were stolen from a Benton Harbor saloon Saturday.

The examination of George Vosburg on complaint of obtaining goods under false pretenses, was continued before Justice Graves today until next Friday at 9 o'clock.

THE WITFUL SAY.

What is there wanting in the spring?
The air is soft as yesterday.
The happy meadow green is here,
And half the world is on the wing.
The morning beckons, and, like balm,
Are westward waters blue and calm,
Yet something's wanting in the spring.

What is it wanting in the spring?
O April, lover to us all!
What is so poignant in thy thrall
When children's merry voices ring?
What haunts us in the cooing dove
More subtle than the speech of love,
What nameless lack or loss of spring?

Let youth go daily with the spring.
Call her the dear, the fair, the young,
And all her graces ever sung
Let him, once more rehearsing, sing.
They know who keep a broken trust
Till something from the spring he missed
We have not truly known the spring.

—Robert Underwood Johnson in New York Sun.

VENGEFUL IN DEATH.

On a certain day I received a letter from a private soldier named Gratmar, attached to the garrison of San Francisco. I had known him but slightly, the acquaintance having come about through his interest in some stories which I had published, and which he had a way of calling "psychological studies." He was a dreamy, romantic, fine grained lad, proud as a tiger lily and sensitive as a bluebell. What mad caprice led him to join the army I never knew, but I did know that there he was wretchedly out of place, and I foresaw that his rude and repellent environment would make of him in time a deserter or a suicide or a murderer. The letter at first seemed a wild outpouring of despair, for it informed me that before it should reach me its author would be dead by his own hand. But when I had read further I understood its spirit and realized how coolly formed a scheme it disclosed and how terrible its purport was intended to be. The worst of the contents was the information that a certain officer (whom he named) had driven him to the deed, and that he was committing suicide for the sole purpose of gaining thereby the power to revenge himself upon his enemy. I learned afterward that the officer had received a similar letter.

This was so puzzling that I sat down to reflect upon the young man's peculiarities. He had always seemed somewhat uncanny and had I proved more sympathetic he doubtless would have gone farther and told me of certain problems which he professed to have solved concerning the life beyond this. One thing that he had said came back vividly, "If I could only overcome that purely gross and animal love of life that makes us all shun death, I would kill myself, for I know how far more powerful I could be in spirit than in flesh." The manner of the suicide was startling, and that was what might have been expected from this odd character. Evidently scorning the flummery of funerals, he had gone into a little canyon near the military reservation and blown himself into a million fragments with dynamite, so that all of him that was found was some minute particles of flesh and bone.

I kept the letter a secret, for I desired to observe the officer without rousing his suspicion of my purpose. It would be an admirable test of a dead man's power and deliberate intention to haunt the living, for so I interpreted the letter. The officer thus to be punished was an oldish man, short, apoplectic, overbearing and irascible. Generally he was kind to most of the men in a way, but he was gross and mean, and that explained sufficiently his harsh treatment of young Gratmar, whom he could not understand, and his efforts to break that flighty young man's spirit.

Not very long after the suicide certain modifications in the officer's conduct became apparent to my watchful oversight. His cholera, though none the less sporadic, developed a quality which had some of the characteristics of senility, and yet he was still in his prime and passed for a sound man. He was a bachelor and had lived always alone, but presently he began to shirk solitude at night and court it in daylight. His brother officers chaffed him, and thereupon he would laugh in rather a forced and silly fashion quite different from the ordinary way with him, and would sometimes, on these occasions, blush so violently that his face would become almost purple. His soldierly alertness and sternness relaxed surprisingly at times and at others were exaggerated into unnecessary acerbity, his conduct in this regard suggesting that of a drunken man who knows that he is drunk and who now and then makes a brave effort to appear sober. All these things and more, indicating some mental strain or some dreadful apprehension, or perhaps something worse than either, were observed partly by me and partly by an intelligent officer whose watch upon the man had been secured by me.

To be more particular, the afflicted man was observed often to start suddenly and in alarm, look quickly round and make some unintelligent monosyllabic answer, seemingly to an inaudible question that no visible person had asked. He acquired the reputation, too, of having taken lately to nightmares, for in the middle of the night he would shriek in the most dreadful fashion, alarming his roommates prodigiously. After these attacks he would sit up in bed, his ruddy face devoid of color, his eyes glassy and shining, his breathing broken with gasps and his body wet with a cold perspiration.

Knowledge of these developments and transformations spread throughout the garrison, but the few (mostly women) who dared to express sympathy or suggest a tonic encountered so violent rebuffs that they blessed heaven for escaping alive from his word volleys. Even the garrison surgeon, who had a kindly manner, and the commanding general, who was concerned on dignified and was known to have been once taken seriously ill.

The most extraordinary thing which he did was to visit one evening (not so clandestinely as to escape my watch) a spirit medium—extraordinary because he always had scoffed at the idea of spirit communications. I saw him as he was leaving the medium's rooms. His face was purple, his eyes were bulging and terrified, and he tottered in his walk. A policeman, seeing his distress, advanced to assist him, whereupon the soldier hoarsely begged:

"Call a hack."

Into it he fell and asked to be driven to his quarters. I hastily ascended to the medium's rooms and found her lying unconscious on the floor. Soon, with my aid, she recalled her wits, but her conscious state was even more alarming than the other. At first she regarded me with terror and cried:

"It is horrible for you to hound him so!"

I assured her that I was hounding no one.

"Oh, I thought you were the spirit—I mean—I—oh, but it was standing exactly where you are!" she exclaimed.

"I suppose so," I agreed, "but you can see that I am not the young man's spirit. However, I am familiar with this whole case, madam, and if I can be of any service in the matter I should be glad if you will inform me. I am aware that our friend is persecuted by a spirit, which visits him frequently, and I am positive that through you it has informed him that the end is not far away and that our elderly friend's death will assume some terrible form. Is there anything that I can do to avert the tragedy?"

The woman stared at me in a horrified silence. "How do you know these things?" she gasped.

"That is immaterial. When will the tragedy occur? Can I prevent it?"

"Yes, yes!" she exclaimed. "It will happen this very night, but no earthly power can prevent it."

She came close to me and looked at me with an expression of the most acute terror.

"Merciful God! What will become of me? He is to be murdered, you understand—murdered in cold blood by a spirit—and he knows it, and I know it! If he is spared long enough, he will tell them at the garrison, and they will all think that I had something to do with it. Oh, this is terrible, terrible, and yet I dare not say a word in advance—nobody there would believe in what the spirits say, and they will think that I had a hand in the murder!"

"Be assured that he will say nothing about it," I said, "and if you keep your tongue from wagging you need fear nothing."

With this and a few other hurried words of comfort I soothed her and hastened away.

For I had interesting work on hand. It is not often that one may be in such a murder as that. I ran to a livery stable, secured a swift horse, mounted him and spurred furiously for the reservation. The back, with its generous start, had gone far on its way, but my horse was nimble, and his legs felt the pricking of my eagerness. A few miles of this furious pursuit brought me within sight of the back just as it was crossing a dark ravine near the reservation. As I came nearer I imagined that the back swayed somewhat and that a fleeing shadow escaped from it into the tree banked farther wall of the ravine. I certainly was not in error with regard to the swaying, for it had roused the dull notice of the driver. I saw him turn, with an air of alarm in his action, and then pull up with a heavy swing upon the reins. At this moment I dashed up and halted.

"Anything the matter?" I asked.

"I don't know," he answered, getting down. "I felt the carriage sway, and I see that the door's wide open. Guess my load thought he'd sobered up enough to get out and walk without troubling me or his pocketbook."

Meanwhile I, too, had alighted. Then I struck a match, and by its light we discovered through the open door the "load" huddled confusedly on the floor of the back, face upward and looking altogether vulgar, misshapen and miserably unlike a soldier. It neither moved nor spoke when we called. We hastily clambered within and lifted him upon the seat, but his head rolled about with an awful looseness and freedom, and another match disclosed a ghastly dead face and wide open eyes that stared horribly at nothing.

"You had better drive the body to headquarters," I said.

Instead of following I cantered back to town, housed my horse and went straightway to bed, and this will prove to be the first information that I was the "mysterious man on a horse" whom the coroner could never find.

About a year afterward I received the following letter—which is observed to be in fair English—from Stockholm:

DEAR SIR—For some years I have been reading your remarkable psychological studies with great interest, and I take the liberty to suggest a theme for your able pen. I have just found in a library here a newspaper dated about a year ago, in which is an account of the mysterious death of a military officer in a hack.

Then followed the particulars as I have already detailed them, and the very theme of post mortem revenge which I have adopted in this setting out of facts. More extraordinary still is his suggestion that in the dynamite explosion a dog or a quarter of beef might as well have been employed as a suicide minded man: that, in short, the man might not have killed himself at all, but might have employed a presumption of such an occurrence to render more effective a physical persecution ending in murder by the living man who posed as a spirit. The letter even suggested an arrangement with a spirit medium.

The only remaining disclosure that I am prepared to make is that my correspondence with the medium was

SHORT OF HER DUTY

The Church is Not Fulfilling Its Mission Declares Rev. Mr. Simons.

CHURCH SHOULD BE A HARBOR

A Vesper Service Introduced at the First Congregational Sunday Evening.

"Is the church fulfilling its mission" was the theme from which Rev. George B. Simons preached a strong and pointed sermon at the First Baptist church Sunday morning.

The theme was suggested to the pastor by reading an interview with Chief Kiple printed in a Chicago paper. The chief of police declared that the church was not exercising any influence over the criminal classes but that it was a deterrent that kept people from becoming criminals. Ever since Mr. Simons has preached here he has urged upon his church that it was easier to prevent than to cure sin. This he holds to be strikingly true in regard to intemperance. It is easier to keep the young from the drunkard's way than to reform the drunkard.

The church, he said, was not fulfilling its mission. It never would as long as any branch held the proud idea that it was "the whole thing." It never would as long as it failed to rescue men and women out of crime and sin. It never would as long as the church member transacted his business as did the worldly business man.

Perhaps Waterson might tell it, but he told an incident in the life of Lincoln. An emaciated lad called on the president. He had been a drummer boy and was taken sick in the army. He had just been released from the hospital and had nowhere to go. His mother was dead, his father had fallen in battle. The boy was too weak to work. Tears started down the cheek of the kind president and he wrote a note ordering the quartermaster of the army to care for him. "That's what the church ought to do and be—a refuge for the homeless and sin-tried, a lighthouse to the wanderer, and not a place for the gathering of purse-proud hypocrites."

Next Sunday Mr. Simons will show the relation of the church to the criminals, in his Prison Sunday sermon.

A vesper service was held at the First Congregational church Sunday evening. It consisted of responsive readings and special music by the choir. It is proposed to hold a similar service every month and it is safe to predict that the vesper song will become popular with the congregation.

Miss Eleanor Woodruff contributed a charming feature to the morning service at the Episcopal church Sunday. She sang a solo and her beautiful soprano voice was never more appreciated. She touched the tenderest emotions of her auditors and called forth sympathies long latent and unexercised. The story of the song was full of pathos and this element was so forcibly brought out that many eyes became moist with weeping.

SAYS HE'LL KILL HIMSELF.

Major Evans Ashamed of Going Back to Jail.

CASSOPOLIS, Oct. 18.—Major Evans, now in the Cass county jail awaiting trial for attempting to shoot a messenger on a Michigan Central train at Glenwood, has made two unsuccessful attempts at suicide. He fears at his trial, which commences Monday, he may receive a long sentence.

Evans declares he is innocent. He says, while serving his last term in Jackson prison, he took active part in the religious services and urged his fellow convicts after their release to live sober, honest, industrious lives. For this reason he declares he can never go back to prison again and face them.

If the jury convicts him he swears he will never leave the court room alive, having deadly poison concealed in his pockets.

17 YEARS AGO.

The Steamer Alpena Foundered in Lake Michigan.

Seventeen years ago yesterday the steamer Alpena was shipwrecked and upwards of 130 person perished. The steamer left Grand Haven Friday night October 10, 1880, and sank in a terrible gale that sprung up during the night and continued throughout Saturday.

The frightful calamity is distinctly remembered by many Benton Harbor citizens, and particularly vivid are the circumstances to Don C. Morrison, Frank H. Platt, Dr. McLin and Frank Napier, who left this place in a tug as soon as the steamer was reported lost and went to Grand Haven where they patrolled the beach in search of bodies. They discovered the first body from the boat cast up by Lake Michigan. Mr. Morrison had a relative among the lost and Captain Napier, the master of the Alpena, was the father of Frank Napier.

PUT UP BRAVE FIGHT

Did Supervisor Hemingway Before the Board of Supervisors.

BUT OPPOSITION WAS STRONG

And He Did Not Succeed in Having Benton Harbor's Assessment Reduced.

Supervisor Hemingway, of this city, made a brave fight before the board of supervisors to have $40,000 lopped off the assessment of Benton Harbor. He was defeated, but his valor and gallantry in the struggle will be remembered. He urged as a reason for the reduction that the city had suffered through the blight of the season's fruit crop; that business and professional men, land owners and laborers, all alike felt the depression produced by the failure in the great industry to which Benton Harbor looked for a maintenance, and therefore were not so able to meet taxation as in prosperous years.

His oratory was lost to the supervisors and his proposition was defeated. Mr. Hemingway made his speech while the board was considering the adoption of the report of the committee on equalization. Others of the supervisors, Lincoln's and Royaltown's representatives, each argued for a reduction, but they were no more successful than Mr. Hemingway.

The committee on equalization, Supervisors, Ira R. Steinn, J. S. Caldwell, J. E. Harder, Clayton Smith and John Seel, submitted its report late Saturday afternoon. Five thousand dollars were deducted from the assessment of Bainbridge, $40,000 added to Bertrand, $10,000 deducted from Berrien, $15,000 from Chikaming, $5,000 from Gallien, $10,000 from Hagar, $40,000 added to Lincoln, $17,000 deducted from New Buffalo, $77,000 from Niles, $10,000 added to Pipestone, $25,000 to Royaltown, $30,000 to St. Joseph, $10,000 deducted from Sodas, $40,000 from Three Oaks, $20,000 added to Watervliet.

The total assessment of each township and city as equalized by the board follows: Bainbridge, $476,220; Bertrand, $958,590; Berrien, $903,090; Benton, $935,375; Benton Harbor—first ward, $243,110; second ward, $351,730; third ward, $357,025; fourth ward, $419,500; Buchanan, $1,183,515; Chikaming, $213,835; Gallien, $324,110; Hagar, $241,810; Lake, $449,260; Lincoln, $299,590; New Buffalo, $252,455; Niles city—first ward, $269,370; second ward, $611,147; third ward, $309,633; fourth ward, $279,081; Niles township, $981,430; Oronoko, $934,020; Pipestone, $577,310; Royaltown, $352,440; St. Joseph, $295,625; St. Joseph city—first ward, $448,250; second ward, $161,549; third ward, $254,278; fourth ward, $178,345; Sodas, $378,910; Three Oaks, $522,300; Watervliet, $695,990; Weesaw, $480,760; grand total, $15,309,642.

CURED OF SCROFULA.

ALLEGAN, Mich., Sept. 3.—For the benefit of suffering humanity I wish to state that for seven years I was a great sufferer from scrofula and blood trouble, having a very bad limb all of those years. My limb was a raw sore from the knee to the ankle, and it had been impossible to find relief or help. My health was very poor from the condition of my blood. After all of these years of suffering I became discouraged and had about given up being any better.

I was advised to call on Drs. B. S. & Co. when at Allegan. They told me they could help me. I believed they knew their business and commenced treatment at that time. This was in 1893. I began to improve at once and continued to improve until my limb was well and my health was good, and I have remained well and I feel that I cannot thank Drs. B. S. & Co. enough for what they have done for me. After seven years with other skillful doctors and to get no better I feel that I must sing their praises. I am in hopes that all sick and afflicted will see Drs. B. S. & Co. before it is too late. They are all right and gentlemen of honor.

NEW YORK CHRONICLE.

A Young Wife's Complaint in the Wedding of the Honey-moon.

Charley Wheeler and Lucille Sprockett had been married nearly three weeks, and they had just returned from their wedding trip. They were supremely happy in each other's love, and the honeymoon so far had been to them as one long, blissful dream. Within the next day or two, however, the bride grew slightly depressed in spirits, and an uneasy feeling seemed to take possession of her. The young husband noticed the change, but attributed it to fatigue from the recent travels. But his bride grew more nervous and took on such a troubled expression that he said to her:

At first she tried to persuade him that he was mistaken, that nothing worried her.

"You are wrong, Charley, dear," she would say. "Really, I am not worrying over anything. I am just as happy as I can be."

The day following, however, the young wife wore such a troubled look that her husband said to her:

Seeing that further concealment was impossible, she broke down and sobbed bitterly:

"Oh, Charley, I am so unhappy!" she wailed. "I have—deceived—you."

A sickening sensation swept over the young husband. Surely there must be some mistake. She, whom he had looked upon as the personification of innocent womanhood—deceive him! It must not be. It would destroy his happiness and blight his life. And then, when he caught a sudden vision of the horrible possibilities of the situation, he became sick at heart and almost fell to the floor. Then, with a great effort, he controlled his feelings.

"Tell me," he said. "I am prepared for the worst."

"Oh, Charley, I am so sorry!" "You should have thought of this before."

"I know, I know. I see my mistake, now it's too late," she cried. "Oh, why didn't I tell you before we were married?"

"Tell me now, and be quick about it. I cannot bear this suspense."

"Tell me first that you will forgive me," she said in pleading tones. "I will devote my whole life in atonement for this one mistake."

"I cannot promise until I know what it is," he said.

Then she came over and knelt at his feet. "Oh, Charley, you know the wheel I got just a few weeks before we were married?"

"Yes; but what has that?"

"Why, I bought it—on the—installment plan—$4 a month—and have only paid—one installment. And I just know the collector will be—here tomorrow. Oh, Charley," she sobbed, "can you ever forgive me?"—Ohio State Journal

KILLED WITH A FORK.

Horrible Story of the Murder of An Infant by a Farmer Near Charlotte.

THE NEW STATE TAX LAW.

Auditor General Dix Calls Attention to Some Mistaken Ideas That are Afloat.

CHARLOTTE, Oct. 18.—(Special)The-mysterious grave robbery in Carmel has developed into a charge of child murder and the charge of grave robbery against John Bigley and Frank Miller will be changed to murder by killing with a pitchfork and burning the body of a young babe. Tuesday morning Miller's unmarried daughter gave birth to a child which was reported to the neighbors as being dead, and the same day it was buried in a fence corner on the farm without either coffin or clothing.

There was such an air of mystery connected with the whole affair that an investigation was ordered, resulting in Bigley and Miller being locked up. Saturday afternoon Miller, who is the husband of Bigley's other daughter, weakened under the pressure of Sheriff Hall, and explained the whole thing. He said that he arrived home and went to the stable to put out his horse, not knowing anything about the events of the day. While thus engaged Bigley arrived at the stable and brought the child out from under some straw, and that it was alive; that Bigley handed him a pitchfork and compelled him to kill the child, which he did by running the tines of the fork into its body; that while doing this Bigley stood over him with a knife and threatened to kill him if he refused to do it. After the child was dead, he says, old Bigley carried the body to the house and tossed it into the stove. The sheriff has found considerable corroborative evidence to Miller's story.

THE NEW TAX LAW.

Property Sold in 1894 Must be Redeemed Before December 4.

LANSING, Oct. 18.—There is a mistaken idea afloat regarding the effect of the new tax law which changes the time for the redemption of state taxes from December to May. The impression is abroad that the delinquent taxes of 1894 need not be redeemed until next May. Auditor-General Dix announces that redemption from the sale made from the tax record at the annual tax sale in December, 1896, for taxes of 1894 or prior years must be made on or before December 4, 1897, whether the sale was made to an individual or the description bid to the state. Redemption money cannot be received either by the county treasurers or by the auditor's department, at any later date. On and after December 6, all lands bid to the state at the tax sale in December 1896, and not redeemed before that date becomes state tax land, and subject to sale as such, and all lands sold to individuals at said sale will be deemed on surrender thereafter of the certificate of sale.

Ira Lent and Frank Kelly, the two members of Company E, First Regiment, who were injured during the encampment of 1895, will receive an allowance of $1,500 and $2,000 respectively from the state board of auditors at its next meeting.

Ed Hayes, alias Charles Brown, attempted to escape from Deputy Sheriff Clark at Kalamazoo Saturday while returning to jail from court, and after a hot chase was shot by Clark. He dropped but was soon up and ran, but was caught. By means of X-rays the ball was located and was removed. He is under guard at Queen City hospital. He is charged with burglary.

THE WONDERS OF A WATCH.

Few Persons Know How Great Its Marvelous Powers Are.

A Boston jeweler who has a talent for advertising as well as a genius for mechanics has been reminding his patrons lately that a watch is the smallest, most delicate machine that was ever constructed of the same number of parts. About 175 different pieces of material enter into its construction and upward of 2,400 separate operations are comprised in its manufacture.

Some of the facts connected with its performance are simply incredible, when considered in total. A blacksmith strikes several thousand blows on his anvil in a day and is right glad when Sunday comes around, but the roller jewel of a watch makes every day and day after day 432,000 impacts against the fork, or 157,680,000 blows in a year without stop or rest, or 3,153,600,000 in the short space of 30 years.

These figures are beyond the grasp of our feeble intellects, but the marvel does not stop here. It has been estimated that the power that moves the watch is equivalent to only four times the force used in a flea's jump; consequently it might be called a four flea power. One horsepower would suffice to run 370,000,000 watches.

Now the balance wheel of a watch is moved by this four flea power one and forty-three one-hundredths inches with each vibration—3,558 3/4 miles continually in one year.

If you would preserve the timekeeping qualities of your watch, you should take it to a competent watchmaker once every 18 months.—Youth's Companion.

WINTER NOTES.

Subdued Colors — Decorative Buttons. Trimming For Shirt Bottoms.

Cloth of various colors will be very much worn this winter. Effective contrasts will be obtained by means of velvet and embroidered satin, which will be utilized as trimming. Gray and other subdued tints, while enjoying a fair share of attention, will yet not militate against the employment of colors by means of which elegant and artistic results are to be obtained. Cloth in green, violet, mauve, bluish gray, changeable pink and gray or white, trimmed with darker velvet, valuable ornamental buttons and applications of embroidery or old point enriched with gold or silver, composes exquisite toilettes of great elaboration and expense.

Buttons are still much used for decoration, but are not as immense as heretofore, the largest being seldom more than 1 1/2 inches in diameter. From this size they run down to very small ones and include all styles of material and workmanship. Some are entirely composed of metal filigree, others are studded with jewels, still others are made of cut steel. There are enameled and painted buttons, buttons of plain or frosted gold or silver, buttons of pearl, horn and composition, and these are all employed for ornament as well as for use.

With the diminishment of sleeves, jackets have resumed all their former favor, and although capes are still fashionable they do not prevail as they formerly did, when enormously bouffant sleeves made them a necessity. Jackets are often very much decorated, now that flat ornamentation is again used, and many models are decidedly elaborate.

The picture given today shows a jacket of mauve gray cloth, fitting closely at the back, but rather loose in front. It is trimmed with black braid, fastened by tiny steel buttons. Lines of braid follow the seams. The back, the lower edge and the revers are embroidered with black and gold. The collar is of black velvet.

GREAT EDITOR DEAD

Charles A. Dana of the New York Sun Died at His Home Sunday Afternoon

A VERY BRILLIANT CAREER.

The Foremost Journalist of His Time and His Paper a Political Power.
NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Charles A. Dana died at 1:20 o'clock Sunday afternoon at his home at Glen Cove, L. I. He was ill a little more than five months, but it was not until about three weeks ago that it was known that his illness was mortal. On June 9 he was in the office of the Sun apparently strong and hearty. The next day he was taken ill and he has not visited New York since. Until three weeks ago, however, he kept in touch with his paper and directed its policy from his sick bed. Cirrhosis of the liver was the immediate cause of his death.

On Saturday Dr. Hall, one of his medical attendants, announced that Mr. Dana could live only a few hours and the members of the family were notified. They hastened to his bedside and all were with him at the end. He knew that he was dying and bade them good by. He was conscious and calm to the last. There were present his wife, Mrs. Dana; his son, Paul Dana; his daughters, Mrs. W. H. Draper, Mrs. J. W. Brennan and Mrs. William Underhill, with their families, and E. O. MacDaniel.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—When told of the death of Mr. Dana, Joseph Medill, editor of the Chicago Tribune said: "Mr. Dana was a man of extraordinary force and ability. He had a wide range of information and seemed to be thoroughly conversant with every topic that occupied the public mind. As a writer of incisive, effective editorials he had no superior. His style was peculiarly his own. He had a knack of stating things so they were forced upon the readers of his paper and kept forever ringing in their ears. Like all positive men, Dana frequently made mistakes in matters of public policy, and at times I thought his logic faulty and unsound, but for all this he stood at the very top of the pinnacle of journalistic fame, and rightly so."

"There was one marked characteristic in his make-up which made him many enemies—he was as relentless and unsparring as an Apache Indian in stalking down the victims he had marked for slaughter, and he generally wore their scalps at the end of the fight. What's more, he had the cunning faculty of being able to make his side of a dispute appear right and just, no matter how weak it might really be, and in this way he often won a public support to which he was not entitled. His treatment of Grover Cleveland is a fair illustration of this characteristic in Mr. Dana. In the eyes of the general public Mr. Cleveland was always regarded as an able man, but Dana pilloried him unmercifully in the Sun and made him the subject of never-ending sarcasm which had deadly effect."

TOWN IN ASHES.

THREE THOUSAND PEOPLE ARE HOMELESS.

Drunken Man Sets Fire to and Destroys the Historic Town of Windsor, N. S.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 18.—The town of Windsor was fire-swept yesterday, and 3,000 people are homeless. The fire started at 2 o'clock Sunday morning, and at 9 o'clock seven-eighths of the town had been entirely wiped out. The direct financial loss is $1,500,000, with about $500,000 insurance. Two lives were lost and many were injured. Windsor is a historic town in the land of Evangeline, about fifty miles from Halifax, and is famous as a seat of learning, containing a ladies' seminary and Kings' college, one of the oldest universities in America. It was one of the wealthiest towns for its size in Canada, and contained about 4,000 inhabitants, 3,000 of whom are now homeless. George Fletcher, a colored man, kept a billiard room and low barroom combined. Saturday a paper was served on him for selling liquor contrary to the provisions of the Scott act. Saturday night he celebrated the circumstance by getting gloriously drunk and setting fire to the place. Then he rushed from his dive. The flames followed him out the door and spread rapidly, and soon the town was ablaze. A hurricane from the northwest was blowing, and the rapidity with which the fire spread was astounding. Practically nothing was saved. A few people got some of their possessions out of their houses, only to see them consumed in the street. During the seven hours that the fire raged every wholesale and retail store and every shop—in fact, every place of business in the whole town—was swept out of existence with all they contained. Five of the six hotels were burned, the three banks, the postoffice and custom house, the court house and jail (the prisoners being liberated by the jailer), the electric light station, telegraph and telephone buildings, every foundry, mill and factory, five of the six churches—Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian, Roman Catholic and Salvation army, the Episcopal only escaping—all public school buildings and 400 residences and dwellings.

RIVALS KLONDIKE

WON CLAIMS ON THE RIVER TANANA.

More Evidence That There Is Room for Everybody in the Yukon Country.

ST. MICHAEL, Alaska, Oct. 4. (via San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 18).—A story has come down the river that Tanana will become the rival of Klondike. Reports say that rich stakes have been made on this tributary of the Yukon, and the best part of it is that Tanana river is in American territory. The Tanana river is several hundred miles long and of the same character as the Klondike. It empties into the Yukon from the east at Weare, opposite the town of Tanana, about thirty miles below Rampart City. It is fed by streams from the Tanana hills on the north and Mount McKinley on the south. The Tanana river is about 700 miles from Dawson City on a straight line and 1,000 miles by the Yukon river route.

THE COURT'S OBJECTIONS.

Flaws Found by Judge Coolidge in the Hickory Creek Drain Proceedings.

In the opinion handed down by Judge Coolidge in the Hickory Creek drain matter, in which he decides the proceedings void, he says the main question to consider is whether the original application is sufficient to warrant the drain commissioner in proceeding to deepen, straighten and widen Hickory Creek. The application, the court says, did not ask for the establishment of Hickory Creek as a drain, and therefore, it is held, the drain commissioner's authority in diverting the natural course of the creek by turning its waters into an artificial channel is questioned. "Wherever it is proposed, therefore," the court says, "to have the commissioner make any changes in an established drain or a natural water course by widening, deepening, straightening or extending, I think that application must set forth specifically, what portion, or all of these objects is desired."

PINGREE POTATOES.

What the Governor Brought Home from Venezuela.

LANSING, Oct. 18.—Governor Pingree has sent to the college seven potatoes, an ear of corn and a pear which he brought from Venezuela. The potatoes are of medium size, of a purple color, and resemble the Blue Victor. The Venezuelan name of the variety is not known, but the United States name will be "Governor Pingree." The corn is eight-rowed flint, ear eleven inches long and a good specimen of that variety. The pear is not like any variety of our pears, but looks very much like a Japanese persimmon. It will be preserved as a curiosity. The corn and potatoes will be planted next spring and tested for this climate. Governor Pingree says the potatoes are of excellent quality.

ENGLISH LAWYERS.

The Small Fees That Are Received by the London Barristers.

A barrister's fees are small, and they are always paid in advance, and the sum is recorded under the title of the brief. A friend who has a large practice showed me his feebook yesterday. The largest item was 38 guineas, which is less than $200. The average was about $50. Fees are regulated by the benchers of the inn according to the service performed, and no contingent fees are allowed. A barrister may accept a case for nothing or return the fee in cases of charity, but he cannot without violating his oath, directly or indirectly, accept any greater compensation for a legal service than is allowed in the regular schedule fixed by the benchers of his inn. If he does so, he is debarred from practice.

It is a common custom in America for a lawyer to undertake a suit for the recovery of damages or a claim of any kind with a contract that he shall receive a certain percentage of the amount of money recovered. In England such an act would be considered disreputable, and any barrister found guilty would be expelled from his inn. The fees are regulated by the amount of time and labor required, and not by the amount of money involved. A barrister may receive a fee of $250 in a case involving only $500, and he may receive a fee of $25 in a case involving $1,000,000.

All legal business originates with solicitors. They bring to the barrister's office a case all prepared after certain forms and written in manuscript. The British courts do not permit typewriting. The solicitor requests the barrister to undertake the case, and the fee is marked plainly upon the brief. If the barrister does not care to undertake the labor for the amount of money allowed or for any other reason, he advises the solicitor to go elsewhere. If he accepts the responsibility, the solicitor leaves the amount of the fee in coin with the brief, so that the barrister has his pay in advance. This is the almost invariable custom. The only exceptions are in cases of close friendship between the solicitors and barristers and where there is a large amount of litigation in which both are involved. Then it is customary for the barrister to make up his bill at the end of the month or the end of the quarter, but the fee in each case must nevertheless be written upon the brief and recorded in the books of the court.

It is customary, also, for the solicitor to leave a fee for the barrister's clerk at the same time, which must be a certain percentage of that paid to the barrister. When you dine at a hotel or a restaurant in England, it is customary to tip the waiter an amount equal to 5 per cent of your bill for the same reason. The waiter receives no compensation from his employer, nor does the barrister's clerk. His pay comes entirely from the clients, and if his principal has no clients he gets no pay. On the other hand, if his principal has a very large and profitable practice his fees are enormous. They say that the clerk of Sir Charles Russell, who is a very successful barrister, has a salary of $10,000 a year.
